What Is ITLA?

The Information Technology Leadership Academy (ITLA) is a formal program for state IT professionals with a focus on developing leadership skills. Individuals with a strong capability for enterprise-wide thinking, aspirations for career advancement, and experience carrying out their organization's mission and vision are ideal candidates for acceptance into this program.

The world of Information Technology requires continuous professional growth.

How It Works

ITLA participants expand their skills in leadership, executive presentations, business communications, and political skills.

As they hone their skills, students also learn about the legislative budget process, organizational change management and executive interviewing skills.

The academic delivery model includes traditional classroom sessions, group discussions, expert speakers, and scenarios in which participants address real world problems with practical solutions. Classes are taught by private instructors, IT executives, and prior graduates. The program also includes class sponsors and class managers who support the students professional development through coaching and mentoring.

Take this opportunity to join future IT leaders on a journey down the professional development path.

Professional Development

Participants will network with dynamic peers who possess similar leadership aspirations. Students will also have the opportunity to partner and collaborate with experts from other state agencies who participate in and lead the academy.
